The Fourth and Final Forecast of the Cotton Crop of East Bengal for 1953-54.

[Note.—According to the final forecast of 1952-53, the area under Cotton in East Bengal represented some 1·7 per cent. of the total area under the crop in the whole of Pakistan. There are two varieties of the crop (viz., Early and Late) grown in East Bengal. Cotton grown in this Province is mostly of short staple variety. The Early variety is chiefly grown in the district of Chittagong Hill Tracts and to a small extent in Mymensingh district. The Late variety grown in a very limited area of Mymensingh district.

This forecast covers the period from April to the end of January.]

Character of the Season.—It has already been stated in the first, second and third forecasts of the crop that the weather and its effect on the cultivation and growth of the crop have been quite favourable. There was little drought in the month of April but subsequent moist weather helped much in the growth and flowering of the crop. Average weather prevailed in the district throughout the whole season. No report of damage to the crop was received. Harvesting of the crop was started normally this year in the month of October.

Area Sown.—The areas sown with the Early and Late varieties of the crop are estimated at 58,275 acres and 45 acres this year, as against 58,175 acres and 45 acres respectively of last year. Slight increase in area is due to reclamation of waste land.

Total Yield.—The total yield of cotton is estimated at 17,390 bales and 15 bales this year, as against 17,170 bales and 10 bales respectively of last year (at the rate of 392 lbs. per bale).

The Second and Final Forecast of Cocoanut Crop of East Bengal for 1953-54.

[Note.—Cocoanut is grown more or less in almost all the districts of East Bengal but is mostly concentrated in the districts of Bakarganj, Noakhali, Jessore and Khulna. It is generally planted from July to September and harvesting is continued throughout the whole year. Two forecasts are issued for this crop during the year. This forecast covers the period from July 1953 to June 1954.]

Character of the Season.—The weather condition was favourable for the growth of the crop. Of course drought in certain parts of the districts affected the crop to some extent. But this did not affect much on the harvests.

Acreage.—The total area under Cocoanut in East Bengal is estimated at 45,600 acres this year, as against 45,800 acres of the last year.

Outturn.—The average outturn of the crop for the Province as a whole is estimated to be 89 per cent. of the normal this year, as against the same outturn of the last year.

Yield.—On the basis of 89 per cent. as the Provincial average outturn and 40 maunds as the average rate of yield per acre the total yield of the crop for the Province works out to 59,600 tons this year, as against 59,900 tons of the last year.

The Third Forecast of Cotton Crop of East Bengal for 1953-54.

[Note.—According to the final forecast of last year the area under cotton in East Bengal represented some 1·7 per cent. of the total area under the crop in the whole of Pakistan. There are two varieties of the crop (viz. Early and Late) grown in East Bengal. The cotton grown in this Province is mostly of short staple variety. This forecast covers the period from April to the end of November.]

Character of the Season.—The cultivation of the crop was started normally this year with favourable weather condition. Although there was paucity of rainfall in the month of April, it was compensated by the rainfall in the month of May. Rainfall in the month of May was very much beneficial to the standing plants which helped considerably the growth and flowering of the crop. There was no report of damage to the crop since the publication of the 2nd Forecast of the crop.

Area Sown.—The areas sown with the Early and Late varieties of the crop are estimated at 58,275 acres and 45 acres respectively this year as against 58,175 and 45 acres shown in the final forecast of last year.

Total Yield.—The total yield of cotton crop is estimated to be 17,390 bales and 15 bales this year, as against 17,360 bales and 15 bales shown in the corresponding forecast and 17,170 bales and 10 bales in the final forecast of last year, under Early and Late varieties respectively. The weight of each bale is 392 lbs.

The Third and Final Estimate of Spring Oilseed Crops of East Bengal for 1953-54.

[Note.—In 1952-53 the area under Linseed, Rape and Mustard crops in East Bengal represented some 89 per cent. and 33 per cent. respectively of the total areas under these crops in the whole of Pakistan. Other oilseeds (excepting Cocoanut and Sesamum for which separate forecasts are issued) are not largely cultivated in this province.

This Estimate covers the period from October 1953 to the middle of April 1954.]

Character of the Season.—As already stated in the first and second forecasts of the crop, sowing of the crops commenced under favourable weather condition. Subsequent weather for the early growth of these crops was satisfactory. But later on long standing drought prevailed throughout the province and adversely affected the crop in some parts of the province. The outturn of the crop is estimated to be not quite satisfactory.

Acreage.—The areas cultivated with the spring oilseed crops this year are estimated as shown below:—

Name of crops.	This year's area 1953-54.	Last year's area 1952-53.
1. Linseed	65,300	62,600
2. Rape and mustard	504,500	507,300
3. Other oilseeds	20,000	21,000
Total ..	589,800	590,900

Outturn.—The average outturn this year under different spring oilseed crops for the province as a whole are estimated as shown below.—

Name of crops.	Outturn this year 1953-54.	Outturn last year's 1952-53.
1. Linseed	72%	74%
2. Rape and mustard	82%	84%
3. Other oilseeds	74%	73%
Average	81%	83%

Yield.—On the basis of 6·5 maunds, as the normal rate of yield and 72 per cent. as the average outturn per acre for Linseed, 6·6 maunds as normal rate of yield and 82 per cent. as the average outturn per acre for Rape and Mustard and 4·25 maunds as the normal rate of yield and 74 per cent. as the average outturn per acre for other oilseeds; the total yield for different oilseed crops for the province as a whole, works out as follows:—
